VISITING QUARTERS SECURITY

a. In hotels or quarters, arrange your room. Keep your personal luggage and other items neat and orderly so you can recognize tampering. Ensure that windows and curtains remain closed, the latrine door remains open and the shower curtain is pulled back.

b. Orient yourself to your surroundings. Know the locations of fire extinguishers, exits, and how to locate security personnel as well as recognition of their complete uniform. Vary your entrance and exits, as well as departure and arrival times.

c. In answering your door, do not immediately allow strangers into your room. First identify your visitors prior to opening the door. Do not stand in front of the door when answering. Cover the peephole on your hotel door with a 3 x 5 card to eliminate your detection and to obstruct the view within your hotel room.

d. Don't loiter in the lobby. Do not answer pages over hotel intercoms. This could be a surveillance tactic. If possible, do not leave your key with the front desk. Do not conduct professional or personal business on lobby telephones or in public areas.

e. Room location. Occupy a room between the third and tenth floors. Avoid frequent exposure on balconies or near windows. Frequent exposure makes you an easy target for an explosive charge thrown from a speeding vehicle into a hotel known to be frequented by Americans. If occupying a hotel room for more than a week, change rooms periodically to different floors and wings.

f. Never post revealing reminders or movement schedules in your hotel rooms. Keep each member of your party well informed about your whereabouts individually. Do not make it easy for a terrorist to target you or your group.

g. Know how to use the local phone system. Carry telephone change and know the emergency numbers and addresses for the local police, MP's, government agencies, and the U.S. Embassy.
